THE CITY OF THE 1000 ISLANDS

Brockville is one of Canada's most historic towns, with early settlers coming in waves from the US during the years in which the American settlers fought for independence. Loyal to the British crown, these settlers were known as Loyalists and became the roots of a new settlement. Today, Brockville is a thriving urban community with much of its Victorian-era charm still intact. Located on the north banks of the St. Lawrence River, Brockville is ideally located less than an hour drive from Ottawa, and two hours drive to Montreal. Recognized as one of the most picturesque areas in the world, the Thousand Islands is world famous for its beauty, rich landscape and many waterfront attractions and events. It is also one of the best fresh water scuba diving sites in the world.

Location: in south-eastern Ontario on the north shore of the St. Lawrence Seaway, in Leeds & Grenville County

Sister Cities:

- Ontario, California (USA)

Notable Features:

- The Thousand Islands Bridge and the Ogdensburg–Prescott International Bridge, both cross the St. Lawrence River into New York state
- Main administrative, health-care and commercial centre for the region
- Majority of the population traces back to European roots. Visible minorities constitute only 3.1% of the total population, residents of aboriginal descent comprise 1.9%
- The city's architecture consists of many carefully preserved stately mansions and elaborate fountains (reminders of its history)
- Sports: Brockville Rowing Club (one of the oldest rowing clubs in Canada), Brockville Braves (Junior "A" ice hockey), youth baseball & basketball teams
